

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT

Jeffrey Jacobson
CommsFirst, Inc.
jeff.jacobson@commsfirst.com

Former General Dynamics IT President Joins CommsFirst's Board

Michael Chandler Sees Promise in Their Innovative Approach to Disaster Recovery

PEACHTREE CITY, Georgia — September 10, 2008 — CommsFirst, Inc. announced today that Michael Chandler, former president of General Dynamics Information Technology has joined their board of directors.

“Mike’s extremely relevant experience will help address the next phase of CommsFirst’s growth and we look forward to his contributions as a member of our board of directors,” said Alan Silverman, CommsFirst President and CEO.

“Our business model is very focused on delivering critical communications, power, and applications to help clients deal with serious situations and we think Mike’s background, knowledge, and insights will be very valuable for guiding us in the years ahead.”

“CommsFirst’s managed services for deploying experts to provide tactical communications and early-hour situational assessments, as recently demonstrated by their response in the aftermath of Hurricane Gustav, will enhance disaster recovery for agencies, communities, and enterprises across the country,” said Michael Chandler.

“I’m really looking forward to working with the executive team and CommsFirst’s board to help scale their unique business model and innovative service offerings.”

Prior to joining CommsFirst, Mike was president of General Dynamics Information Technology, a diverse organization of 16,000 professionals providing systems integration, information technology, systems engineering and professional services to customers in the defense, intelligence, homeland security, federal civil and commercial sectors.

About CommsFirst

Founded in 2006, CommsFirst provides managed services for high-impact operational disruptions. Regardless of the state of local infrastructure, the company delivers communications, power, and applications to help organizations recover quickly.

###